Company upgrades technologies to improve performance and advance growth Advanced communications; the keys to success

Tampa, FL, March 6, 2009 Hunter Warfield, Inc., (HWI) announced today that it has installed the most extensive technology upgrade in the company's history.

"We have simultaneously moved from an older phone system to a state-of-the-art Mitel IP-based system, and transformed our physical data network and firewall setup from an SMB (Small Business) configuration to a robust enterprise setup," noted Alex Sherwood, V.P. of Information Technology at Hunter Warfield. The primary impetus for the upgrades is to allow the company's Tampa headquarters data and telephone network to connect with satellite offices throughout the world without interruption or downtime.

The upgrades also position the company to scale up to 400-500 employees while maintaining the performance and availability it is currently experiencing. "By investing in our infrastructure now, we have positioned ourselves to provide uninterrupted communication service for many years to come. Our clients expect us to have the capabilities and technologies in order to service their accounts without interruption and we have achieved that goal," noted Stephen Sobota, CEO of Hunter Warfield.
